Class Description: Most English classes that involve writing begin something like this “Go home and write a paper about what you did over the Summer.” The teacher tells you to start writing, but he or she doesn’t teach you HOW to write. This structured writing class shows students how to write a good paper, which words to avoid, how to take notes, make outlines, and use great words. Improvement takes form as Students move from what is interesting to them, to what is important to the assignment. After using this tried and true system of learning, watch your Students’ writing come alive. Surprisingly, the written papers which are claimed to be the “best” on the college entrance exams, are from Students who have mastered the IEW style.

Parental Involvement for daily homework assignments is required!
